men of the Punjab Infantry wounded, including two native officers. The action is expected to have a beneficial effect on the country.

The Zibh Expeditionary Force has reached the village of Volo in the Zibh Valley. Shah Jahan has descended from it. His fort there will probably be blown up.

SMOKING THE FOOTS.

The force advanced ten miles to-day. Sha Jahan's and Dost Mahomed's foots, six miles on the road, were blown up by parties specially despatched for that purpose. Hindoo Bagh is reported to be 33 miles and Zander three marches from here.

SARFULIAN (through Dauli).—On October 28th, the British force advanced, and arrived at Sultahal on the 27th, and blew up and burnt in route the forts of Shah Jahan and Dost Mahomed, his nephew. Our position is now about thirty-five miles from Hindoo Bagh, which is the head of the Zibh Valley. There is a report brought of a gathering of tribes in a pass just beyond the next march, and a cavalry party has been sent out to reconnoitre this place.

MERCHANT SHIPPING.

The depression which has for some time prevailed in the shipbuilding and shipowning trades is apparent in the returns relating to the navigation and shipping of the United Kingdom for the year 1883. Although the orders for new steamers decreased at a rapid rate through the year, the number of ships built and the work turned out during the year was in excess of anything that had previously been accomplished. The total tonnage built in the United Kingdom during the year 1883, including tonnage built for foreigners, was 892,216 tons net, which was 109,000 tons more than that built in the previous year, while the tonnage built in the United Kingdom in 1882 was 804,900 tons net. The average annual increase in the total tonnage register of the United Kingdom during the ten years was 122,698 tons net, but in the year 1883 it was 287,781 tons net.—Newspaper Magazine.

SILK CULTURE IN THE UNITED STATES.

Among the notable American women of the present day Miss Nellie Rosister has a special claim to distinction, for by her intelligence and enterprise she has been the chief agent in introducing silk culture into the United States. She is the daughter of Mr. John Rosister, head of the first Philadelphia silk stock farm, which not only gives employment to every member of her family, from her grandfather of eighty-four to her brother, a small boy of seven years, but enables her to control the silkworm egg market of the States. Miss Rosister is at present engaged in the interesting experiment of crossing the different breeds of worms by means of the seven natural shades, all of which from pale pink to fawn brown, are obtained on her farm. Not satisfied with her success in rearing silkworms, the young lady is now introducing spinning-wheels and looms, the practical use of which she is taught by an English silk-weaver. Miss Rosister occupies such hours as she can spare from her work and studies in writing articles on subjects connected with silk culture for the American press. Her pamphlet on the subject has already gone through five editions, and circulates at the rate of 8,000 copies a year.—Pall Mall Gazette.
